

Upcoming Information Sessions for Community and Home Support

South Gippsland Shire Council will be holding community information sessions during July in regards to Community and Home Support Services.

The sessions will provide further clarity for clients around provision of services. At this point services will continue as normal as Council is continuing to investigate options with regard to a suitable alternative service provider.

These community drop-in sessions will be held across South Gippsland at the following times:

- Tuesday 3 July 2018: Leongatha Dakers Centre – 2.00pm to 7.00pm
- Thursday 5 July 2018: Loch Masonic Lodge – 2.00pm to 7.00pm
- Thursday 10 July 2018: Foster War Memorial Arts Centre – 2.00pm to 7.00pm

Community members are encouraged to drop in during these times to have conversations with Council staff about any of their concerns regarding the future of their or their family member's services. Tea, coffee and biscuits will be available at each session.

All meetings have been arranged to correspond with V/Line bus services. Those who may have difficulty attending are asked to contact Aged and Disability Services on 5662 9200.

South Gippsland Shire Council's Director Corporate and Community Services Faith Page said these conversations were vital to help reduce some worries in the community.

"Council wants to ensure our Community and Home Support clients that we will be supporting them and ensuring any transition of services will be with their wellbeing in mind.

"We will continue to seek alternate arrangements but all clients should have some peace of mind that services will continue," said Ms Page.
