Description of the proposed building: _____

Building Materials: _____

Description of the farming that takes place on the land: _____

Description of the farming purpose of the proposed class 10 building: _____

Application Considerations:

An exemption can only be granted pursuant to Building Regulation 280 for new class 10 buildings on farming land which is to be used for farming purposes. Class 10 buildings are typically non-habitable structures used for storage, such as hay and machinery storage sheds. Farm buildings used for processing, packaging, assembly, repairing, finishing or cleaning goods for trade sale or gain (such as dairies, packing or processing buildings/warehouses and commercial activity uses) cannot be classed as class 10 buildings and are not eligible for this exemption. Generally, sheds over 300m² in floor area may not be approved for this exemption. Sheds with excessive engineering designs may not be considered for this exemption. Each application is assessed on a case by case basis.
