

New Mapping Platform for South Gippsland

South Gippsland Shire Council has launched a new mapping platform which enables people to search their address to view property information, planning reports and nearby services.

The mapping system which is operated by Technology One, also provides aerial imagery, zoning information and an option to view planning overlays.

South Gippsland Shire's GIS Administrator, Gordon Simpson is pleased with the map's new functionality.

"The new mapping platform has a lot of features that we think will be of interest to residents. It would certainly be useful for anyone who is interested in finding out the area of their property, what zone they are in or what overlays might apply. The aerial map option is also surprisingly detailed. It's good to see South Gippsland from a different perspective.

"The map is designed to be easy to navigate, you just need to enter your address and you can find information relevant to your property. As well as the planning information, it will also tell you which Council ward you are in and even which day you should put your bins out to be collected," said Mr. Simpson.

To access the maps, head to Council's home page and go to Our Region or enter the following link: www.southgippsland.vic.gov.au/ourregion

Detailed instructions are listed on the page to help users work through the many mapping options that are available.
