

Big Sounds Small Halls

To help bring live music back into our small halls, South Gippsland Shire Council is hosting “Big Sound Small Halls” – a series of live music events that will run from now until 30 June.

The first two events on the program feature talented musician Jack Botts, who offers a unique folk sound with strong, thought-provoking lyrics. Jack has spent the last 18 months on the road across Australia and has supported performers such as Tash Sultana, Pierce Brothers and Ash Grunwald.

With a down-to-earth style and natural charm, Jack is sure to delight local audiences.

Jack will be performing on Friday 9 April in the Mirboo North Hall and Saturday 10 April at the Tarwin Lower Mechanics Institute.

Jack will be supported by local musician Janie Gordon at both events and by Wilson Blackley at Mirboo North and the Invy Horn Jam at Tarwin Lower. The Mirboo North event is being delivered in partnership with Mirboo North Arts.

Tickets cost $15 per person and can be purchased online at:

Mirboo North: www.trybooking.com/BPTGB

Tarwin Lower: www.trybooking.com/BPUUE

Tickets can also be purchased at the Wren’s Nest in Mirboo North and Tarwin Lower Mitre 10.

Big Sounds Small Halls is being delivered as part of Councils $2M COVID 19 Community Support package.

Quotes attributable to South Gippsland Shire Council Arts Development Officer, Mary Sullivan.

“Last year musicians and live music venues were significantly impacted due to COVID-19. This year we are pleased to be welcoming back live music to South Gippsland and to our local halls. The Big Sound Small Halls events provide a great opportunity to celebrate and reconnect with others and to enjoy live music once again.”
